

We welcome the Month of July with:

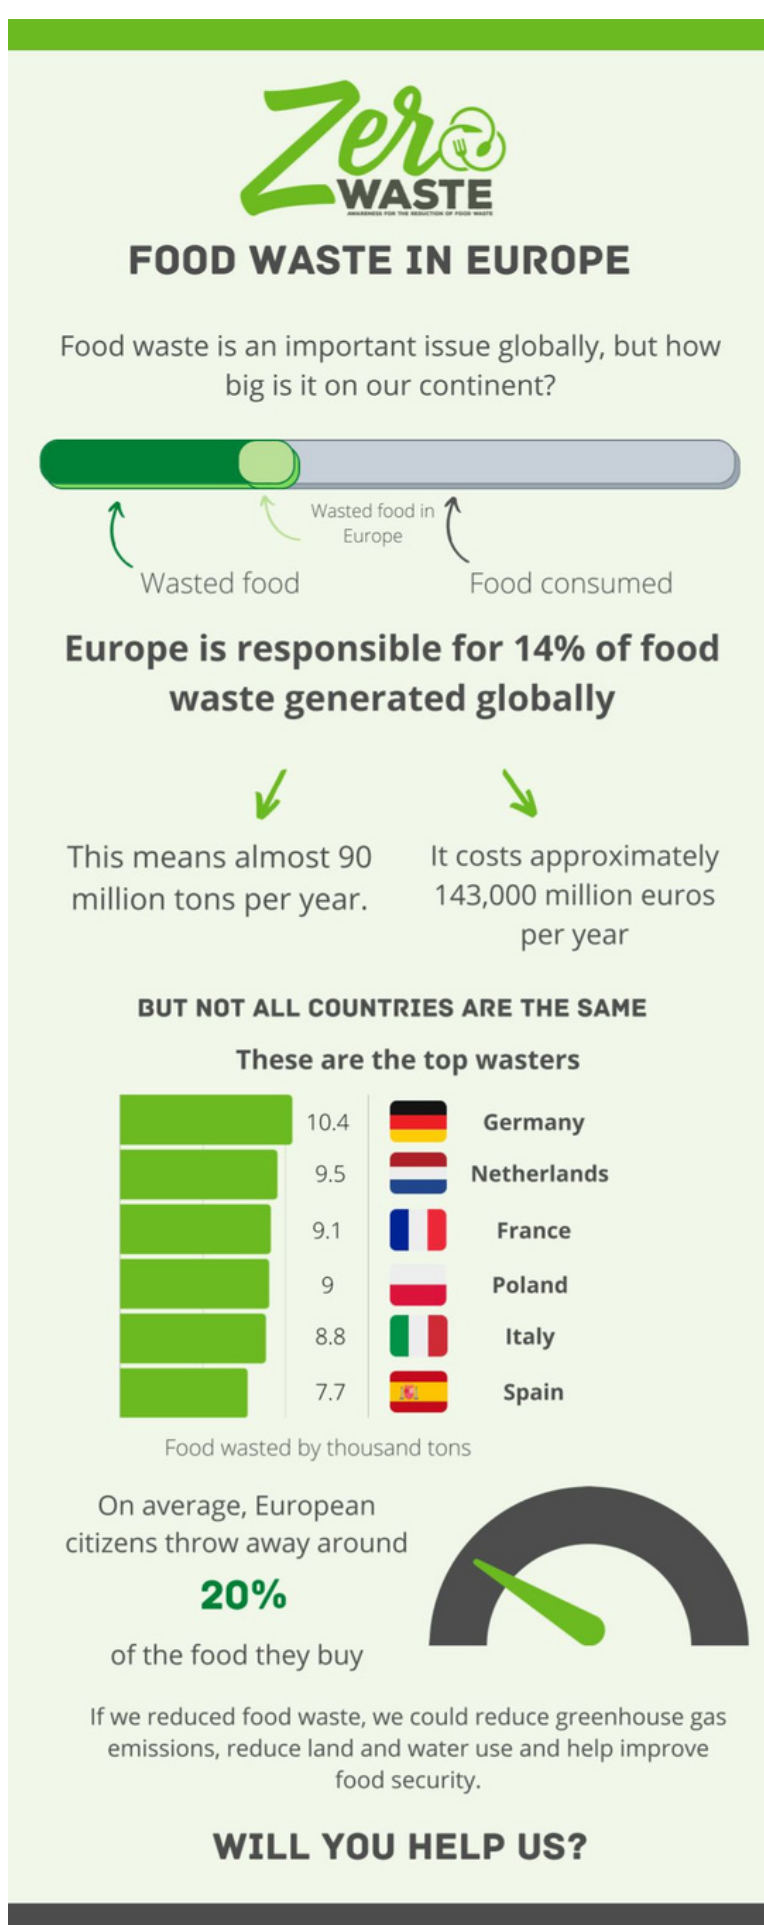

The School of Families, our monthly newsletter that will help you learn more about food waste. You will receive infographics, games, or challenges to do at home.

If you are hungry for more, we invite you to continue exploring the resources available on our website.

We come with a new infographic!

We have already said that personal responsibility plays a very important role in food waste. After all, most food waste takes place at the household level. However, for most of us, it is difficult to be aware of the extent to which we are contributing to this problem and the effect it has on other people around us.

In the specific case of Europe, there is a lot of data that tells us that we still have work to do:

Did you know what the European contribution to food waste was? Do you think you are above or below the average in your country? Tell us on our social media!

And next month...

That's all for the month of July. If you want to know more, we invite you to keep reading out didactic materials and to follow us on Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn. Next month, more and better?

Towards zero waste!
